Bergamot Cedar Deodorant HiBar

HiBAR Deodorants are formulated to be as safe and gentle on your skin as they are for the planet. No aluminum, sulfates, phthalates, or parabens, and no cruelty, ever. And of course, NO PLASTIC—the packaging is all paper, printed with vegetable-based ink. Instead of typical packaging that can last for centuries, HiBAR's can be recycled as fiber or composted. Even their shipping containers are 100 percent plastic-free, with pallets wrapped in compostable material.

Pie Fillings Bonne Maman

Bonne Maman was founded in a small village in southwest France and is still headquartered there, though the company has processing facilities in the US as well. Its goal is to create high quality foods for grocery retail that taste homemade, using simple, real ingredients. Bonne Maman is also committed to reducing waste in their facilities, with fruit stored in wooden crates that are reused and even repaired instead of being thrown out after a single use. On average, the boxes last 25 years! On top of that, any food waste is donated to nearby farms for animal feed.

Fruit Minis Bear

Bear was started to provide families with a healthier snacking alternative. Fun packaging and a sweet taste without any added sugar make these Fruit Minis a great treat for children or adults! All Bear products use whole fruit, never from concentrate. The fruit is dried slowly to preserve nutrients and made into rolls or shapes without any dyes or preservatives.

Natural Smoked Kippers Bar Harbor

This natural, wood smoked herring is wild caught in the North Sea, part of the Atlantic Ocean in northern Europe. It's Marine Stewardship Council certified, sustainably harvested and sorted and packed by hand. With only three simple ingredients (herring, water, and salt), it's a great option for easy, tasty meals and snacks packed with Omega-3, protein, and calcium.
